

LUND
UNIVERSITY

Faculty of Science

Bo Wallén, Communications Manager

Faculty of Science at Lund university pursues an extensive work aiming at informing and stimulating young people to higher education. The faculty arranges annually training-courses for 'scientific student ambassadors', viz. for students that have been hand-picked on basis of good social and educational skills.

Daniel Jinnefält has passed the faculty's student-ambassador education and has been working as ambassador for Faculty of Science at Lund University between the years 2000- April 2005. He has also during that period been working as instructor and mentor within the educational programme for university-overarching student-ambassadors. During the autumn 2003 he had the administrative responsibility for Lund University's participation in the Swedish national student-fairs in Gothenburg, Stockholm and Malmö.

Daniel Jinnefeldt has done a good effort as student ambassador, and his exceptionally good organizing ability has been very useful for us. Furthermore, he is out-turned and popular amongst both colleagues and teachers, and I can cordially recommend him.
