

The Equal Opportunities Ombudsman's honorary mention in the essay competition of the year 2004

At the awards ceremony on the 8th of March 2005

author

Daniel Jinnefält

was presented with an honorary mention for his study

ASP Gender Program in the Eastern Province of Zambia.

A Minor Field Study evaluation of the social, economic and environmental development in the Kawoozi Camp.

Claes Borgström

Equal Opportunities Ombudsman

The Equal Opportunities Ombudsman in Sweden (JämO) diploma for Daniel Jinnefälts report,

ASP Gender Program in the Eastern Province of Zambia. A Minor Field Study evaluation of the social, economic and environmental development in the Kawoozi Camp.

The author has in his study analysed the ASP Gender Program in the Eastern Province Kawoozi in Zambia. The results indicate that the relations between women and men have changes over time since the gender program was introduced. In the social area women and men are today sharing the homework that previously strictly was divided by sex. Also the economy has evolved through the change in interaction between the sexes, from being totally dominated by men towards a mutual responsibility between the women and men concerning planning of the management and budget of the fields and in the economy.

The Equal Opportunities Ombudsman's (JämO's) justification:

The Equal Opportunities Ombudsman in Sweden (JämO) consider this paper valuable and has honoured the author a diploma for the result that has been achieved. It is a contribution in order to increase the knowledge and gives evidence that it is possible to change the condition and welfare when equality is integrated socially and economically in society.

Ph D/Senior research Officer Irma Irlinger, 8 March 2005

